TWO ROUNDS FOR ROOSEVELT.
WONDERFUL FLYING.
HE WILL KILL HIMSELF.
SEN. REED'S PLANK.

By Arthur Brisbane
(Copyright 1932 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago, June 28.—A few minutes before 9, the crowd is streaming from the big stadium. It has shouted and yelled, watched a few "almost" fights, has seen Governor Roosevelt win his first two rounds, the Louisiana delegation contest and the naming of Walsh of Montana for permanent chairman. Now it is going home to eat, talk, even, perhaps, to think.

MORE important than any nomination was the exhibition by army flyers on Chicago's lake front last night. We have good times and bad times. Good times come from the generosity of Providence, bad times from our own stupidity and weakness.

All that we possess depends on our ability to defend ourselves from attack in the air. You would believe it if you had seen those huge army bombing planes roaring in close formation over Chicago's skyscrapers in the dim twilight yesterday.

While Chicago's crowds looked on, admiring the same crowd would have witnessed the complete destruction of its site and of a million lives, by poison gas and bombs, in the same length of time, had they been enemy planes.

IN THE MORNING there had been preliminary flying, planes zooming low, hundreds of pigeons on the lake front fluttering wildly in all directions, filled with fear at the approach of those super-hawks. W. E. Hearst Jr. remarked that sea gulls seem even more frightened when he flies low over the water from his New York office to the far end of Long Island.

THE NIGHT display was most amazingly beautiful and daring. The great planes flew so close together, their wings seemed to touch. They took strange shapes like a great sled, a Macedonian wedge, a long drawn-out monster!

AND THE LAYING of a smoke screen, by one single plane, a screen high and wide enough to hide whole air fleets or a fleet of battleships, showed how hopeless attack from the ground must be, with swift planes above. In modern war, land armies and floating vessels would need squadrons of planes to hide and protect them.

STUPEFYING to spectators was the performance of James Parker, an army lieutenant, "stunt flying" in the dark. The ship went out a trail of fire as he flew, giving absolutely perfect imitations of a sky rocket.

He rose at frightful speed, high in the air, not "almost perpendicularly," but as straight up as an elevator rising in its shaft, then, turning as a spent rocket turns, he dropped to earth like a falling spark.

M. C. Meigs, the all-America football star, who pilots his own plane, constantly, with his family on board, said of the daring army man:

$111,707 IS BID ON CONCRETE JOB

State to Open Bids On Other Highway Projects July 15

O. W. Merrell, Columbus, director of the state highway department, today announced the awarding of the contract for the improvement of 6.46 miles of the Salem-Albion road, U. S. highway 62, between Salem and Westville, to the General Asphalt Paving company, of Canton on a bid of $111,707.80.

The contract calls for grading, drainage structures and paving with concrete to a width of 20 feet. Work will start as soon as the contractor can move equipment to the site. The project is scheduled for completion Dec. 15, 1932.

The detour, while this road is under construction, will be from Salem, via Valley North Georgetown, and then north Lake Placid town to Westville.

As in all state contract work this year, provision is made to select 60 per cent of all unskilled labor used on the project from the county relief committee's list of deserving unemployed.

Lincoln Highway Job Listed
The state highway department will open bids at Columbus July 15 for the widening and surfacing with concrete of 6.07 miles of the Lincoln highway between Kensington and the Columbiana-Stark county line.

Approximately 1,000 feet of this road will be re-located, this re-location being west of the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad crossing west of East Rochester, where the Lincoln highway now crosses the railroad on an "S" curve.

Victor Olson, of Youngstown, to whom the contract was awarded for the construction of a concrete section of the Lincoln highway between Hanoverton and Kensington, has finished the pouring of concrete on

For the last 15 years, he was pastor of the Lutheran church in Clyde, N. Y. He was active in missionary work and was instrumental in establishing churches at Newark and Syracuse, N. Y.

Two Change Pleas, Given Sentences

LISBON, June 29.—Earl Jones, who was jointly indicted with Guy Carson by a special session of the grand jury June 20 for burglary and larceny of poultry from the farm of Frank Armstrong in Elkrun township, went before Judge W. F. Lones and changed his plea from not guilty to that of guilty. He was sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory from one to 15 years.

Carson also changed his plea to guilty and was sentenced to serve from one to 15 years in the Ohio penitentiary. Both have been in the county jail since arraignment in default of $2,500 bond.

No Reinstatement

COLUMBUS, O. June 29.—Police officers discharged for misconduct cannot be reinstated to the civil service and are ineligible for reappointment, Attorney General Bettman ruled.

Platform Builders In Wet-Dry Tangle; Delay Convention

Chicago Stadium, June 28.—Waiting on its platform committee, the Democratic convention convened today nearly an hour late, and recessed immediately.

A tangle over the prohibition plank threw the platform builders far behind schedule and postponed until the late afternoon the promised floor fight between advocates of repeal and advocates of submission.

While the convention stood in recess, in a half-filled stadium, the waiting delegates and guests laughed and applauded at the offerings of a succession of professional entertainers.

A night session was in prospect to hear nominating speeches.

WIN EARLY CONTESTS

Roosevelt Forces Bent Now on Nominating Their Leader

By BYRON PRICE

Associated Press Staff Writer.

CHICAGO, June 29.—The banner of Franklin D. Roosevelt flutters high above the Democratic national convention today as it came to grips with the problem of what to do about prohibition—last of its major issues except the nomination itself.

Encouraged almost to the point of jubilation by yesterday's victories on an emotion-swept convention floor, and a night of missionary work among the doubtful, Roosevelt leaders marshalled their forces, bent on writing a repeal submission plank into the platform and nominating into the leadership by tomorrow.

Difficulties Loomed

Difficulty remained, however, ahead of both of these projects. The minority band of Anti-Roosevelt delegates, split among nearly a dozen candidates, fought desperately on, with their backs to the wall, and a plan to repeal the Democratic amendment raised a challenging barrier in the pathway of the Roosevelt-sponsored platform.

A difficulty of their own faced the Roosevelt men also in failure of the platform-drafting subcommittee to agree, up to the last minute on the exact wording of the majority prohibition plank. The led to suspicion on the part of the right wets that the Roosevelt forces might yet seek to delay action on prohibition, though not on the whole platform, until after the nomination had taken place.

Will Go Further

It was certain in any case, that the party would go at least one step further than the Republicans had gone in prohibition. The choice for the Democrats was between submission of a repeal, and a declaration that the party would not merely submit repeal, but would seek its ratification.

Although George, Roosevelt himself is on record for repeal, his managers have not wanted the convention to go that far.

Those who want to affirmatively advocate repeal have developed strength surprising not only to the Roosevelt opposition but to themselves. From more than a score of states they drew support in today's contest, and some of it came from delegates pledged to Roosevelt. They predicted that if they did not actually win, they would come very near it.

Walsh Heads Repealists

To Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, pledged to the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith, fell the leadership for the repealists. Heading the defense of the submission plank was a Roosevelt man, Gilbert Hitchcock of Nebraska.

On a lesser scale, disagreement developed at a morning session of the committee today over the farm plank, but it was completely overshadowed by the prohibition dispute.

KELLER AND BLACK LISTED FOR A.A.U.

Olympic Candidates Will Show Wares In Special Events

Three athletes whose names and feats have flashed throughout the world where track and field supremacy is sought and fought for in record breaking contests will provide an unusual lustre to the city's first A. A. U. track and field meet Friday night under the floodlights at Reilly stadium.

Stella Walsh of Cleveland, internationally famous girl athlete whose winged feet have clipped records on many cinder paths, will be here to compete in two special events, Black Keller and Johnny White, whose sprinting prowess has brought fame to Ohio State this year, will skim the 110 meter high hurdles, the official Olympic event to demonstrate the way it will be done when athletes from all sections of the globe will compete in the annual international contests in California.

150 Athletes Expected

Wilbur J. Springer, sponsoring the meet here, today definitely announced that the two O. S. U. athletes and Miss Walsh will take part in the meet, which is expected to bring between 150 and 200 entries from the college, scholastic and amateur ranks.

Stella Walsh is bringing with her, Springer announced, two girl athletes but little less speedy than Stella herself. They are Rose Tribby and Dorothy Strauss. The 100 meter women's special race in which they will run, is scheduled for 8:30. In addition, the Cleveland girls will throw the discus, in which event Miss Walsh has already bettered the world record for women, in practice heats. This mark is 127 feet, 10 inches.

The Black-Keller event is scheduled for 9 p. m. Both Black and Keller, as well as Miss Walsh, have already qualified for the final Olympic tryouts at Palo Alto, Cal., in July.

Keller has broken two world records to date, the high and the low jumps.

Salem's Good Place in Which To Live and Figures Prove It

Interesting Picture of City and Its Racial Characteristics Painted by Rotary Club Speaker; Health, School Standards High

Salem is a good city in which to live. The approximately 11,000 or more persons who constitute its population have been convinced of that for a long time, but Michael Kley, of the welfare division of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company of New York, who addressed the Rotary club last night at the Quaker tea house, has delved deeply into census reports and has come up with figures on everything from radio sets to the percentage of widowers and widows, to provide additional proof.

An interesting picture of the people of Salem, based on the 1930 census, was presented by Kley, whose subject was: "The People of the Community: What the 1930 Census Figures Tell Us About Salem."

26 Nationalities

For instance, did you know that there were at least 26 different nationalities represented among the people of foreign birth who have chosen Salem for their homes?

The figures that Kley presented revealed the following interesting table, based on the census: From England, 105 persons; Scotland, 27; Wales, 10; Ireland, 36; Norway, 5; Sweden, 14; Denmark, 5; Holland, 14; France, 9; Poland, 26; Germany, 109; Switzerland, 30; Czechoslovakia, 72; Austria, 65; Hungary, 8; Yugoslavia, 35; Russia, 13; Lithuania, 3; Finland, 2; Rumania, 374; Greece, 7; Italy, 35; Syria, 7; Turkey, 7; Canada, 36.

Excellent health records and a remarkable showing in school attendance, as well as other factors, recommend Salem as a good city in which to live. Kley pointed out from radio sets to the percentage of widowers and widows, to provide additional proof.

There were 1,327 boys and girls between the ages of seven and 13 in the schools, representing 99 per cent of the number of young people of this age.

20 Per Cent In Schools

All together, 2,687 young people between seven and 20 are in the schools, representing 20 per cent of the population, which, Kley commented, was unusually high and a very favorable condition.

Kley delved into federal records to show how Salem had made an increase of three percent in population since 1920. Approximately

Schools Receive Tax Check, Teachers' Salaries Are Paid

City Also Receives Settlement But, Because of Sinking Fund Requirements, Auditor Says, Friday May Be Payless

Teachers' back salaries were paid today and the financial condition of the Salem public school system looked a little brighter following the receipt of education, of a check for $35,000 representing the final settlement to be given schools from tax collections.

Notice that a settlement of $67,535.71 will be sent to the city was received this morning by Auditor Karl L. Webster.

Pay Checks Mailed
Clerk Hayes reported that checks have been mailed to teachers, principals and other instructors who left their jobs last May with two weeks' pay still due them. Bonds scheduled to fall due or which have fallen due will be retired to as great an extent as possible while the board will also be able to pay up back interest on bonds and notes.

Because of a deficiency of more than $20,000 in the settlement compared to that obtained from tax collections a year ago, Hayes said that the board will immediately be able to take care of all debts.

The final settlement granted the schools, Supt. Earl S. Kerr pointed out today, is approximately $6,000 under the estimated amount county officials predicted schools would be given.

Payless Day for City
All officials, firemen, policemen, department heads and other workers will again be forced to go "payless" Friday, despite the settlement. City Auditor Webster announced, but steps will probably be taken to obtain a loan from the waterworks department in order to pay the back salaries.

Officials and city workers are still without the pay due them two weeks ago.

Miss Helen Chaffant, who is a member of a garden club at Orlando, Fla., where she spends her winters, gave a brief talk about the club there.

Mrs. W. E. Bunn, past president of the W. E. Bunn, past president presented Mrs. Brandmiller a "promissory note," with a bit of yellow ribbon on, yellow being the club's official color. This "note" was a promise that next fall she would receive from the club a forsythia plant, the city's official flower.

State Club Leaders Gather
Three state garden club officials were also guests of Mrs. Brandmiller on this occasion. They were: Mrs. C. S. Robinson, state president; Mrs. S. P. Ker, state secretary; and Mrs. S. P. Ashley, chairman of foreign gardens. They are all residents of Youngstown. Mrs. Cornell, Youngstown, president of a garden club in that city, was also a guest.

Mrs. George Macaw of Dennison, who was spending the day with Mrs. William Silver was a guest. She is president of the garden club at Dennison.

On July 24 the club will have a picnic supper in connection with a meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank Harris, East State st.

ECONOMY PLAN IS REVISED AT COUNCIL MEET

Pay Cuts Effective, However; Barchhoff To Get $1,200

CAN'T EVADE LAW, SOLICITOR RULES

Control Board Asks 10 Per Cent Cut Instead of Proposed 15

Plans for the formulation of an ordinance placing in effect, on and after July 1, 15 per cent salary reductions for municipal officials and employees, were virtually completed by members of city council in a special session Tuesday night.

Council revised its original procedure, and will retain F. S. Barchhoff as city engineer, at a salary reduction of 50 per cent, the solons rejected a proposition presented by the board of control asking for a reconsideration of 15 per cent reductions in favor of 10 per cent cuts and they moved toward final action on the ordinance, if it is ready, at another special gathering planned Thursday night.

Members of the board of control, Mayor John M. Davidson, Service Director Clyde R. Reich and Safety Director John R. Kerr, urging the change in the proposed salary cuts, at the same time recommended that no reductions be made to salaries paid members of council.

Explains Legal Angle
Council agreed to retain Barchhoff as city engineer after City Solicitor Cecil K. Scott explained that the legislative body has no legal power to place the engineer as chief operator at the sewage treatment plant.

Operators at the disposal plant, Scott said, are under the jurisdiction of the civil service commission and before Barchhoff could be appointed to the position as recommended last week, he would be forced to undergo a civil service examination.

The suggestion that he be retained at the engineer with a 50 per cent salary cut, giving him an annual pay of $1,200 instead of $2,400, was advanced originally by Barchhoff who refused to accept the disposal plant post, saying that council should keep the present staff of operators.

Reformatory Trio Foiled In Escape

(By Associated Press)

MANSFIELD, June 29.—One of them wounded by buckshot, three reformatory prisoners who attempted to escape were back behind the bars today.

The escape was frustrated by Tower Guard J. G. Barrere, when he turned a shotgun on the trio, Edward Klenz, 21, of Cleveland, was shot in the back.

Barrere then fired several rifle shots at Klenz's companions, John Frelm, 26, of Cleveland, and John Welch, 20, of Cincinnati. Welch surrendered by dropping to the ground. Frelm was found later, hiding near the prison.

The three prisoners broke loose when one of the three reformatory gates was opened to admit a group of convicts returning from work on the outside.

Wins His Diploma

EAST LIVERPOOL, O. June 29.—A diploma denied him 46 years ago because he lacked five credit hours of study, was received by Rev. Frederick A. Dean from the University of Michigan yesterday.

The diploma was voted by the university after he submitted a bachelor of arts degree from Harvard recently.

Democrats Again

CHICAGO, June 29.—Ah, they were Democrats yesterday, and we was all proud of 'em. They fought, they fit, they split, and adjourned in a dandy wave of disension.

That's the old Democratic spirit. A whole day wasted. I tell you they are getting back to normal. A whole day fighting over what? A president? No. A platform? No.

Well, then, what did they take up? 1,100 delegates and 12,000 spectators' time for? Why? To see whether Huey Long (the Louisiana porcupine) was to sit on the floor or in the gallery.

And the other four hours was fighting over who would be chairman of a convention that's already a week old.

Today we will spend the day fighting over who will be permanent ticket taker. If it takes all spring and this far into the summer to pick just a chairman, why it looks like Roosevelt's son will be nominated as he will be the only living descendant.

Yours,
Will Rogers

BRAZIL STOPS A DREAM

If one had listened to President Hoover's recommendation for a one-third reduction in the world's armaments and had continued to dream in that vein of thought he might have convinced himself that progress toward disarmament actually was being made. For anyone who may have had such a dream, Brazil furnishes an awakening.

At a time reduction of the expense of national defense, if not reduction of the defense itself, is an attractive possibility Brazil announces that its navy will be built up from scratch. Twenty-five new vessels of war will be purchased and paid for by 12 annual appropriations of $500,000 each.

The outlay has been requested for years by the Brazilian press, backed by an impressive following of public opinion. As in every country which authorizes a constantly expanding arm of national defense the people have been convinced by their leaders that there is no way of avoiding the armament burden.

Perhaps there is none. Some of the ablest men in the world have devoted years of their lives to a study of the problem. To President Hoover's startling suggestion that all nations maintain their relative positions by a flat reduction of one-third of their effective weapons they have given various answers, ranging all the way from downright refusal to consider the proposition to eager acceptance of it.

It is obvious that the problem of national defense will not yield to an international formula; reaction to the Hoover proposal proves that Japan insists on its right to carry out a national program in its own way; France will follow its policy of security; Germany objects to being restricted by its victors; Great Britain dares take no step that will weaken its position; the United States can suggest, but can not act alone. Brazil, by forging into the armament race when others are bemoaning its cost, demonstrates the hopelessness of the ideal of disarmament.

AN ADVERTISERS' MARKET

Deflation of business will be overcome eventually by restoration of a natural balance of pressure inside and outside the business structure, which for the last two years has been lowered deeper and deeper into the crushing atmosphere of the depression. The result has been like that experienced by a man in a mine shaft. External pressure has become so high as to be uncomfortable and dangerous. There must be adjustment.

Newspapers believe that it is their function and duty to help equalize the pressure which has been crushing business. More enthusiastically than ever before they are offering advertising space for sale because they are convinced that its proper use will be of primary importance in overcoming deflation. An advertisers' market prevails. Buyers are spending carefully, they are consulting newspapers more carefully than ever for reliable guidance. Nothing has happened to displace newspaper advertising as the keystone of immediate sale merchandising.

The American Newspaper Publishers association, believing in the power of advertising to overcome excessive deflation, has prepared a survey showing the effects of advertising on sales of various companies in 1931. The survey justifies all claims by newspapers of their unique effectiveness for enabling producers and retailers to move merchandise quickly.

Newspapers know that it is good business to help make better business. They believe they are justified in pointing out what shrewd advertisers never have forgotten—that the people want to know where they can buy to the best advantage—that during a depression advertising represents one of the most important of the curative influences available for use.

What Others Say

HOW CITIES RUN IN DEBT.

An individual or a business which goes deeper into debt at a time when income is steadily declining is open to the accusation of financial incompetence. This is exactly what American cities are doing, however. It is one of the reasons for the increasing painfulness of taxpaying and the growing difficulty of collecting taxes.

The spending story of 219 American cities is revealed by C. E. Righer of the Detroit Bureau of Governmental Research in the National Municipal Review. Reduce this load of municipal debt which runs into the billions to the terms of what the average citizen owes as sustaining partner, and it appears that he owes $114. His obligation has been growing, even since the good times ended in 1929, at the rate of more than 6 per cent a year. Municipal debt is one of those things which goes up a great deal easier than it comes down.

Clevelanders are better off in this respect than residents of most other big cities. Which may explain why our financial woes have been a little less overwhelming than those of some of our neighbors. Our per capita debt figures $112, against $165 for New York, $213 for Philadelphia and $150 for Detroit. Oddly enough, Chicago, whose financial mess sets new lows for American municipalities has a smaller per capita debt than Cleveland, or $107.

An accurate comparison of such financial items is always difficult because of varying practices in American cities. In some cases city debt includes school obligations and in some cases not. Self-supporting enterprises such as water works and light plants also complicate the comparison.

But the steady upward climb of municipal debt is something for every taxpayer to worry about. Nor should he limit his interest to worrying. Debts and budgets can be reduced if enough citizens will make up their mind to do it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

If Baby Swallows Pin—

Not long ago I visited an interesting exhibit composed of objects which children and adults had swallowed including pins, nails, combs, buttons, beads, toys, bones.

This is an electrically lighted instrument which enables the physician to look into the deep parts of the throat, the windpipe and the branch of the lungs. It was invented in 1897, but only within recent years was it so perfected as to minimize the dangers and discomforts of its use.

It has been estimated that previous to the use of the bronchoscope, 440 per cent of the persons who had foreign bodies in the breathing apparatus, died. Today, as a result of this splendid advance in medical science, the death toll has been reduced to less than one per cent.

The intake of foreign bodies in most cases is purely accidental, but avoidable in almost every instance. Unfortunately, babies and young children are usually the victims. Dr. Chevalier Jackson, who is the leading authority in this field, says that 90 per cent of such accidents are due to carelessness. He enumerates carelessness in putting in edible objects in the mouth and carelessness of parents and nurses. Children should not be permitted to place toys or other small objects in their mouths. Never allow a baby to play on the floor where there may be pins, buttons, nuts, marbles or other small objects which it can pick up and put in its mouth.

Preventive Care.

Adults as well as children should be warned against the danger of holding things in their mouths while riding in a jolting automobile. In fact, holding things in the mouth is a habit which should not be encouraged at any time. Many a child will place a pin or other object in his mouth only because he has seen his mother do the same thing.

Careless and hasty eating is a frequent cause of trouble. If the food contains a foreign object, such as a pin, bone, or button, it will be swallowed if the food is quickly eaten.

When a foreign object is swallowed and lodges in the throat, do not become hysterical. Often the object can be easily grasped with the fingers. It is always best to call a physician. If it is in the throat, the doctor may grasp it with a long pair of forceps. If it has been inhaled into the windpipe, it will be necessary to use a bronchoscope. Your physician will advise you.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Several hundred claim to have known O. Henry intimately. At least a dozen editors boast of discovering him. The truth is the writer had no intimates save his daughter. No editor ever paid him a social call or vice versa. He was the true lone wolf.

Perhaps the three men who knew him best were Bob Davis, the late William Johnson and Roy L. McCardell. Yet he did not chum with any one of them. He circled about in side streets, lived in forlorn rooming houses or at the Caledonia in the 20's.

He ate alone, mostly in the stool and counter places, specializing on chili con carne, a favorite dish acquired in his Texas days. According to the best descriptions, he was fat, self-effacing, blonde, freckled with his feet, and looked like a western railroad engineer as nearly as he could be judged.

His aloofness was largely because he did not want it known—or was afraid it was—that he had been in the Columbus, O. prison with Al Jennings. Yet it was everybody's secret. Some gossip of the day was dog enough to print it and this in last years made him even more of a recluse.

Many believe Nelson Hersh, a Sunday editor, was O. Henry's real discoverer. If there was one, Hersh picked up a railroad magazine from a train seat and thumbing idly through the pages, came upon a story, signed O. Henry. He was gripped by its sparkle and charm.

Reaching his office, he sent two cubs to find O. Henry. They had about given up the quest and were plooming in a saloon when a listening bartender said: "I know the guy." They found him, and inquiring: "Is your name O. Henry?" received the reply: "That's a name I write under."

O. Henry agreed to write some stories, but flatly refused to visit the newspaper office where Hersh worked. He was living in a shabby $3-a-week room in East 24th st. Sometimes the story would not even be started on the day it was scheduled to arrive. He had no sense of time.

Doubtless the greatest of story plotters, O. Henry never read what he had written. When he finished a yarn, he would say in his modulated voice to the waiting boy: "There's a story that will fill the space." He seemed more interested in filling the space than thrilling readers.

The story that was the light under the bushel and sent free to the railroad magazine was his famous "Gifts of the Magi." Although his perpetual state was stinging poverty, he refused to sell his wares to any editor who returned his stuff during bleak years.

Few literary improvidents had so small appreciation of money values, even when a measure of prosperity came. O. Henry owed $3,000 advanced by a magazine when he died, and was always overdrawn in editorial rooms. He gave largely of his earnings to derelicts he met in night prowls. Gambling, too, took much of his writing awards, for he was lured always by faro bank.

The southwest taught him love of faro, especially Texas and New Orleans. Despite his frailties, he was a literary purist, as all truly great writers are. Once called the "American De Maupassant" he retorted heatedly: "I never wrote a dirty line in my life." His sole assets at his passing were $47. Weary of life's buffeting, he murmured: "Turn on the light! I don't want to go home in the dark"—and died.

Thingumbobs. Instead of a guest book, visitors to the Roy Howards sign names on the walls of the smoking room. Mrs. Elbert Gary owns 22 Whistlers. . . . Narrow band gold wedding rings are the style. . . . Garbo smokes only de-nicotinized cigarettes. . . . The Frank Masons have a daschund. . . . Ed Wynne's orchestra leader directs with a lead pencil. Society is going to the marathon dances as "stunt." . . . Gramah McNamee broadcasts with his hands in his pockets. . . . Kreuger is the only one ever to put over a "fast one" on J. P. Morgan.

Maybe it is the jungle-like blast from the hot asphalt. But anyway I'm in one of those barbaric moods wherein to the far-away beat of tom-toms I'd like to introduce Elissa Landi to Mahatma Gandhi.

 Those lapel microphones, worn like boutonnieres by page boys, worked to the satisfaction of engineers at the Chicago Democratic convention broadcasts.
 The boys were scattered about the hall and moved close to floor speakers when their turns came. Technicians of CBS, who tried out the arrangement for the first time, said that the use of the almost invisible microphones had solved for them the problem of picking up remote voices.

Ed Wynn is going right ahead with his weekly WEAF-NBC programs. His contract, expiring July 19, has been extended to last through out the summer at least—a summer series of operatic broadcasts with Cosme Sodero conducting opens on WEAF-NBC next Tuesday night.

In the case of W. E. Warren against Agnes Strawhecker and others, a motion to stop a sale has been overruled.
 A jury was waived and there was a trial to the court in the case of Nellie M. Waddell, as administratrix of the estate of Roy E. Little against The George Patton Motor Trucking Corp., and a judgment was entered in favor of the plaintiff for $750.

Leave to the defendant Alice Emerick to file an answer on or before July 15 has been entered by Judge W. F. Lones in the case of the State of Ohio on relation of

Divorce Actions

The divorce action of Dorothy Viertel against her husband, Paul Viertel, 782 Seibert street, Columbus O., was uncontested when called for trial before Judge W. F. Lones and a decree was obtained by the plaintiff on the ground of gross neglect of duty. The plaintiff has been restored to her maiden name. A journal entry approved by the court bars the plaintiff of interest in property of the defendant.

The ground of gross neglect of duty was sustained by the plaintiff in the divorce action filed by Marie E. Gillis against her husband, John E. Gillis, and a decree was granted the plaintiff upon payment of costs. The plaintiff has had her maiden name of Marie Elizabeth Smith restored.

Extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty were grounds of action set up in the divorce action filed by Pauline Wilson, of Wellsville, against her husband, Harold Wilson, also of Wellsville. A decree was granted the plaintiff upon payment of costs, and she has had her maiden name of Pauline Lau restored.

"Yes, of course he will kill himself eventually. But isn't it worth it, to do what he is doing for flying?"

THE COUNTRY ASKS: "What sort of platform will the Democrats hand their candidate and the voters?"

One plank that ought to be in the platform, but probably will not be there, was written yesterday by former Senator Reed of Missouri. It reads as follows:

"We declare that there should be a strict adherence to the policy enunciated by George Washington, namely, that we should keep free from entanglement with the disputes of foreign powers."

"We further declare that there should be no cancellation of the indebtedness due us by foreign governments."

Ninety per cent of Americans old enough to vote and intelligent enough to think for themselves would vote for that plank. But platforms are not written for 90 per cent, but for 10 per cent of the population, where foreign debts and foreign nonsense are concerned.

WOMEN are in the news, everywhere, determined to count, apart from "mere production of babies." That production is their most important work, nothing else really counts, excepting creating a better race.

However, they must decide. One English woman, Lady Catharine Carnegie, crossed the English channel yesterday on a surf board, drawn by a power boat, in 65 minutes. Miss Lily Copplestone of New Zealand, crossed the opposite direction in 63 minutes.

Devoted women here hand out tracts asking you to stick to prohibition and you say with John Hues, sancta simplicitas.

Other ladies bring you ice cream in a restaurant, wearing little caps labeled "We want beer." Very gentle ladies, well dressed, sell the Christian Science Monitor with unselfish persistency that would make any publisher wonder. If you tell them to keep the change they will not do it, but give you more. Monitors saying, "Give them to friends."

THE SADDEST story comes from the thirty-second story of a Chicago hotel. A young bride, married last Sunday, wept when her husband said he did not think she could make him happy, after they had been married only one day.

She replied: "I can only give you all I have." took off her wedding ring and engagement ring, handed them to him, and jumped through the window to death.

She suffered but a moment. He will suffer while he lives.

this section. A part of this road has been re-located, and should weather permit, the road will be opened to traffic on or about July 10.

River Route Work Planned

The improvement of the Ohio River road, or a section of State Route No. 7, from 25th st., Wells-ville, west to the intersection of the Irondale rd. in Jefferson county, will be up for letting by the state highway department July 15. This contract calls for a 24-foot paving block top surface on a concrete base, and practically all of the new road is separated from the tracks of the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction Co. A portion of this road in is Columbiana county.

Bids will be received by the county commissioners July 11 for the resurfacing of the Leetonia-Washingtonville road and the Leetonia-Columbiana road, also the East Palestine-New Waterford road. This contract calls for a two-inch re-tread surface over the top of existing surfaces. The cost of the re-treading of these roads is estimated at $18,000.

Requisitions for material for the "West End" road in Salineville have been forwarded to the state highway department by Surveyor Kirk. It is expected this material will be delivered at Salineville within a week and then the state highway maintenance force will begin the widening of this road from Main street, Salineville to the Columbiana-Carroll county line. This is the only narrow section on State route No. 39 between East Liverpool and New Philadelphia.

All brick has been removed from the Lisbon-Salineville road in Center township, and this road is now graded to a width of 20 feet to the Center-Wayne township line. The brick on the narrow section of this road in the vicinity of Gavers will be removed within the next few weeks. Eventually this road will be given a waterbound top.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931 BY COVIELI-FRIEDE INC. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE

Silence fell upon the room. The brother of Christine Quires drew a cigar from his pocket and abstractedly lit it. He did not realize how plausible his theory was beginning to appear. To us who had waded through so much mystification in the last 24 hours, his accusation seemed something more than mere guess-work. In my own mind, as I reviewed our past findings, the links began to appear.

Yet how had Guy Everett managed to kill both Lola and Christine? Granted that he had ample motive, where was his opportunity? True, we did not know his movements between certain highly critical and important hours. But Lola had died, practically before our eyes. Christine's body had been smuggled into the apartment, against our police guard. Where was Everett then? Until these riddles were answered we were no better off than when we started.

"May I see the body of my sister?" asked Edgar Quires, rising as if he understood that his interrogation was ended.

Colt rose with him. "You will be notified when you may claim her," the chief answered. "You see, the medical examiner has not yet brought in his complete report. But that is only a formality. You will hear from us tomorrow—if you will leave your address."

"I shall be stopping at the McAlpin. Old-fashioned, but we always go there. Good-night, Mr. Colt. I want you to know that I shall not rest until the murderer of my sister goes to the electric chair. Thank you, Mr. Quires. I would like you to be at the pent-house of Lola Carewe when I call you. You will be notified!"

Thatcher Colt and Edgar Quires shook hands. Then, with his hand laid tenderly on the arm of his wife, the brother of the murdered Christine departed. As the door closed, the Police Commissioner pressed a button.

And thus it was that two plainclothes men were set on the trail of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Quires, while Colt and Dougherty once more put their heads together for new plans and fresh devices.

Dougherty took the lead in the discussion.

"I do not see," he began, "where your Paris background what we might call the Basil Bouchier motif, fits in with the newest developments. Vincent Rowland had a good motive for killing these three people. If he has been involved in crooked dealings, his high position coupled with the known force and resourcefulness of the man, make the theory quite attractive. What a job it would be to try Vincent Rowland for two murders!"

"You would try them only one at a time," Colt corrected the District Attorney with a smile.

"Need we be technical?" chuckled Dougherty, running a thick hand through his mop of red curls. "On the other hand, Guy Everett seems to be an emotionally unstable person who might have done it through some insane motive of revenge. I believe the case has narrowed down to these two."

Colt nodded philosophically. "Perhaps," he commented. "But there remain certain obstacles to both theories. As a matter of fact, there remain other obstacles to any theory until we break through one physical barrier. Where was Christine Quires between the time she got out of the elevator and the time we found her dead? Until we get over that hurdle, everything else stands still."

"That's a tough one," agreed the District Attorney. "I have been racking my brains ever since last night, and I confess that for hours on end I couldn't get within an inch of the problem." went on Colt. "But tonight I expect to solve it."

"Tonight?" "Yes, Dougherty. In a little while, you, Tony and I are going back to that pent-house. And we are not coming out of it until this mystery is solved."

"Great!" approved Dougherty. "But in the meantime there are a few questions—"

The telephone rang. Inspector Flynn was speaking from his office downstairs. A few reports had come in which were of interest in the Carewe-Quires murders. The clerk who had been on duty in the lobby of the apartment house had at last been located.

He had been on a beach-house party in Deal, New Jersey, but was now being questioned by the police. He did remember the letter which Lola had found in her box — the letter of warning which had drawn us into the case. When asked how the letter had been delivered to the desk, he replied that he did not know. He had been called to the telephone for a moment. When he returned, the letter was lying on the desk blotter. There was no one in sight.

He had not thought this very significant and had merely put the letter back into the box.

Further, Flynn went on to report, the autopsies were completed, and Doctor Multooler had signed documents releasing the remains to the family. Told about Edgar Quires, he promised to arrange with the brother for the claiming of Christine.

From these details, Flynn passed to a recital of the work on various trials. Vincent Rowland had been under complete observation all day. Nothing auspicious had developed. Late in the afternoon he had called at the pent-house and inquired as to the health of Mrs. Carewe. The old man looked haggard and shaken at the events in which he had been entangled. From there he had gone to the Union League Club where he remained up to the last report. Guy Everett had gone to bed and was still in bed, in his room at the Axton Club. He had left word not to be disturbed. Colt thanked and dismissed Inspector Flynn.

"Don't you think we ought to get Rowland and Everett down here and have it out?" again urged Dougherty.

But Colt remained adamant. "Not here," he insisted. "But I am hoping that I will have a simpler plan. Let's be going." And thirty minutes later we found ourselves back in the apartment that had been the home of Lola Carewe.

ECONOMY BILL OUT OF THE WAY

Relief Being Moulded In to Its Final Form by Congress

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The $150,000,000 economy bill was out of the way and relief slowly being moulded into its final form today as Congress plugged along its legislative path.

A 35 to 11 vote in the Senate yesterday ended the dispute over the measure to cut federal expenses $150,000,000 next year. This was a reversal of the Senate's previous position, marked a concession to the House, and left final action up to President Hoover.

At the same time, conferees on the $230,000,000 Garner-Wagner relief bill attacked the remaining and important differences between House and Senate measures. They had been them an agreement that $230,000,000 should be loaned to states by the Reconstruction Finance corporation on the basis of population and $100,000 distributed by President Hoover as he sees fit.

This latter provision had the approval of the administration. The Senate, however, had proposed simply that $300,000,000 be loaned to states on the population basis.

Additional progress was made in the drive to pass essential appropriations bills, before tomorrow although Senate leaders doubted all would be there when the new fiscal year begins.

would be there when the new fiscal year begins.

The Senate, having passed the $150,000,000 treasury-post office measure, took up the $22,000,000 second deficiency bill, the last of the money bills it has to pass.

The economy bill put before the President included the payless one-month furlough plan that he advocated for government employees. It applied drastic pay cuts inserted by the House ranging from 8-13 to 20 per cent on salaries of workers who make more than $10,000.

The $10,000-a-year members of the House and Senate will take 10 per cent slashes and get reduced traveling allowances. The speaker and vice-president, who make $15,000, will lose 15 per cent, while the president and others whose pay is fixed by the constitution would be allowed to return to the treasury as much as they choose.

ECONOMY PLAN REVISED HERE

Pay Cuts Effective, However; Barkhoff To Get $1,200

He suggested this, he said, in fairness to the present operators, Charles Kennedy, Robert Howell and William Mayhew, who, Barkhoff explained, had proved capable and should not be sacrificed in his favor.

Council members lauded the work of Barkhoff in connection with the disposal plant, which he designed and built, and, in retaining him as engineer, will specify that he devote part of his time to work there as supervisor.

No Cut For Council

At the recommendation of Finance Committee Chairman L. R. Cobb, the body agreed to abide by the board of control's request that legislators be given no salary reductions but took no action on the request for the change in the cuts given other officials.

This request, Reich stated, was made because several complaints had been filed with control board members by persons affected by the 15 per cent cut.

Slight changes were made in reductions to be given Mayor Davidson and Solicitor Scott. Cuts in their salaries, formerly slightly more than 15 per cent, were brought down to that percentage.

Davidson's salary, under the revised figure, would be $2,125 annually, and Scott's, $2,040. The mayor now receives $2,500 while Scott's salary is $2,400.

Scott was asked by council members to rush the preparation of the ordinance.

The ordinance will be submitted as an emergency measure, to be effective immediately after passage and signature by the mayor.

PLATFORM DELAY HALTS SESSION

Convention Hour Late; Night Meeting In Prospect

On the question of the nomination, the rise of confidence among the Roosevelt followers was immense. Yesterday, with several delegations in rebellion because of the change of front on the two-thirds rule, they went into the convention plainly worried today they insisted it was all over but the shouting.

Partial, but not complete justification for such a claim appeared on the surface of the seething whirlpool of convention developments.

Back in Line

Most of the dissenting delegations had come back into line, voting solidly to help pile up majorities ranging around 100 on the three test votes yesterday. During the night reports spread about that the fa-

Limit Speeches To 20 Minutes

CHICAGO, June 29.—It would take a week to nominate all the aspirants to the Democratic presidential nomination if every orator were given indefinite freedom of the microphone, but the convention has imposed a curb.

Twenty minutes for nominating speeches multiplied by eight candidates runs two hours and forty minutes. Five minutes to second the nominations multiplied by as many as can get a chance to talk should run the time up to four hours or so.

Favorite son blocs of Ohio and Texas were listening to the call of the bandwagon, and that Tammany was about ready to toss its formidable budget of votes into the lap of the governor.

Huey Long's Roosevelt-pledged Louisiana delegation was seated 638 to 514, and Einar Hoidale's Roosevelt-pledged Minnesota delegation 658 to 492. Then, meeting a most militant challenge, the Roosevelt managers elevated Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana to the permanent chairmanship 626 to 528, over Jouett Shouse of Kansas. A majority of the convention is 578, but it takes 770 to nominate.

The Walsh-Shouse roll call was preceded by a debate in which Gov. Roosevelt was attacked and defended for his attitude toward Shouse.

The rules contest turned out almost a complete fiasco. The rules committee reversing itself under Roosevelt leadership, finally recommended unanimously that the two-thirds nominating requirement be retained, and the recommendation was accepted by the convention by acclamation and with no word of debate.

Yesterday's session was an all-afternoon affair, ending just before 6 o'clock and it appeared that today's would be as long.

PROVES SALEM IS GOOD CITY

Rotary Club Speaker Reveals Interesting Array of Data

11 per cent of the population is foreign born.

In discussing the foreign born, the speaker said that immigration to the United States has been reduced by practically 90 per cent since last year, due to the stringent enforcement by the government of the restrictive immigration law as an aid to economic conditions in this country. Immigration no longer may be counted as an important factor in population growth, he said.

Turning to the matter of citizenship, Kley pointed out that approximately 400 adult foreign born are not citizens of the United States. "Here," he commented, "is afforded an opportunity for service clubs and other agencies to promote educational activity that will encourage the foreign born to become citizens, to reduce the number of illiterates and develop interest in furthering the welfare and health of all in the community."

Illiteracy Low

The census figures, he said, revealed a percentage of 1.1 of illiteracy in Salem, a very low figure, and a decided decrease since 1920.

Continuing his study of Salem's people, Kley presented interesting data on age groups and on the marital and family conditions of the populace. Of the persons 15 years of age or more, 2,032 are single and 4,935 are married, 763 widowed and 83 divorced. It is an interesting social fact, he said, that there are three times as many widows as widowers in Salem.

The census shows an increase in the number of families, the speaker pointed out, but the families themselves are growing smaller. The 1930 figures show 2,923 families against 2,677 in 1920. The number of persons per family, however, is 3.6 as against 3.9 in 1920.

And, as a matter, it might be said, of commercial interest, 50 per cent of the families of Salem have radios, which still leaves a 50 per cent field for the radio salesmen.

Kley was presented by R. S. McCulloch, in the absence of David Bevan, former manager of the Metropolitan office here, who recently sailed for Wales on a leave of absence.

OUR FIRST SALE

NEVER before have we had a general sale in Miller-Jones stores. Our policy is against sales—except when they are absolutely necessary and based upon actual merchandising truths. Conditions have caused many well-laid plans to go astray this year. Retarded buying has failed to clear shelves fast enough—Distress merchandise of unknown quality at ridiculous prices has blocked the ordinary "outlet" channels of all large operators. So temporarily we shall be our own "outlet" for surplus stocks, which virtually means wholesale clearance prices for retail buyers.

THE DAY IN SPORTS

RESERVED FOR COURAGEOUS.

AMERICANS are liberal with enthusiasm for the notables who grace the miniature world of sports, too liberal, perhaps. But, like all people for whom excess stands in the same relation to happiness as a pleasant habit, Americans, with their free enthusiasm, are a perfect background for extraordinary drama.

The "greatest achievement" in golf, Gene Sarazen's almost miraculous recovery to win the United States open championship, could not have been staged to better advantage anywhere else. It has been given all the extravagant description reserved for use when an individual qualifies himself to sit on that pedestal in American imagination reserved for the courageous.

Sarazen, by refusing to fold up when the odds were against him, by playing miraculously good golf with a howling gallery on his heels, by breaking records and bettering scores more than good enough to have won under ordinary conditions and by proving in many ways that behind his skill there is a stout competitive spirit, has made himself the reigning national hero.

Americans have a soft place in their hearts for contenders who are at their best when the going is hardest. No golfer ever made a better finish in a championship match than Sarazen did last Saturday. It is difficult to see how his achievement of making the last 27 holes in 98 strokes can be outdone. Certainly, his display of courage never can be bettered.

GOLF CHAMPIONSHIPS are worth money but what a contrast there is between the winner of the open title and the recent winner of the heavyweight championship of the world—a phrase that should call up all kinds of vivid images of stout hearts and steady hands, but doesn't, unfortunately.

Golf, without the excitement of physical contact, with less money in prospect for its professional contenders and claiming almost as many women enthusiasts as men, has relegated the "manly art" to the obscurity of shady sports.

Why? Because its champions ring true. Like Gene Sarazen, they win knowing that their victories represent something more than successful money grubbing.

American Legion Star Clouts Ball for .536 Average; A. Seeds 2nd

Reliable Joe Kelley, among the most valuable players in the Salem Softball League, captured the batting championship for the first round in the circuit, clouting the ball for the high-powered average of .536, a new record in municipal league activities.

Kelley, playing in 10 games, slammed out 15 hits in 28 trips to the plate and scored nine runs. He is almost 100 points ahead of the second-place man, Arnold Seeds, the runner-up who holds an average of .448.

Only six other batters are hitting 400 or over.

1931 LEADERS Fall Back Kelley remains as the only hold-over from the ranks of heavy sluggers in the 1931 titular race. Frank Scullion, batting champion last season, is far down the list with .241 while Cecil Scullion, who won second place, has a .267 average.

The majority of the players ranking among the ten leading batsmen are newcomers to such honors.

Bruce Cope (Ohio Edison) is in third place with .440 followed by Mike Sartick (Hardware) who is hitting .417. Bill May, Veterans of Foreign Wars pitcher, is clouting at a .412 clip while George McFeely, another underhand toiler, is seventh with .409.

Homer Veon (Pottery) and George Morris (Studios) are two remaining 400 hitters.

Legion Leads Teams Martin Debnar (Mullins), Forney (Studios) and Morris (Studios) share honors in run-scoring, the trio leading the league with 11. Kelley's 15 safeties gives him the lead in the hit division while Debnar has made the most trips to home plate, 34.

Kelley's American Legion team pulled through with the team batting crown for the round while Eddie Miller, with 10 straight victories to his credit, easily topped honors in the hurling department. Miller also led in strikeouts, averaging five a game.

Links King and Ex-King

Experts are agreed that the men shown here are the two greatest golfers in the world, but they cannot agree on which is the greater. Gene Sarazen (left), by his record victory in the British Open, followed by his sensational triumph in the U. S. National Open, joins the golf immortals who have turned the double trick. But being a pro, he can never equal the feat of Bobby Jones (right), who captured the Open and Amateur titles of both countries. However, experts say that Sarazen's 66 in the last round of the U. S. Open gives him a glory all his own. Photo was made when Sarazen and Jones took part in a charity game at Fresh Meadows, L. I., the day after the former had won the Open title.

GOLEFRS LINE UP FOR OPENING OF WESTERN EVENT

Gene Sarazen Withdraws From Tournament At Cleveland Course

(By Associated Press) CLEVELAND, June 29.—Over Canterbury's 18 narrow fairways, and tricky greens, usually beset by high winds, the vanguard of aspirants for the Western Golf association championship warmed up today for the tournament that starts tomorrow.

Practically all of America's golfing clan had gathered for the event which will renew the struggle for supremacy of the links which went into a temporary lull last week when Gene Sarazen outstroked the field in the national open.

But Thursday the field will start without the holder of the world's two most coveted golfing prizes. Sarazen late last night informed tournament officials he would not compete.

Cinci Reds Lose 18 Games by One-Run Margin; In 8th Place

(By Associated Press)

Probably the most cogent commentary of the tense character of the National League race lies in the fact that the Cincinnati Reds, with the best defensive record of any team in the circuit, cannot get out of eighth place.

Dan Howley's troupe has allowed opponents fewer runs per game than any team in either league, yet they consistently come up with the wrong end of the score.

Out of 74 games played, Cincinnati's pitchers have held opponents to an average of 4.3 runs.

Close Lose Games

The secret of Cincinnati's misfortune lies in its inability to win close ones. Eighteen times the Reds have been beaten by a single run.

No explanation is necessary of the Reds' latest loss. They ran into Bill Hallahan yesterday when the southpaw felt like pitching himself a ball game. They got only four hits and the score was St. Louis 6, Cincinnati 2.

Young Bobby Brown turned in another fine game as the Boston Braves defeated the Phillies, 5 to 2, and went into a virtual tie with Chicago for second place. Brown yielded but four hits.

New York and Brooklyn divided a pair, the Giants winning the first, 7 to 3, and the Dodgers the second, 5 to 3. Johnny Frederick, Brooklyn outfielder, lost the opener with a disastrous error in the ninth inning, but came back to win the nightcap with an eighth inning home run.

Yanks Win Again The Yankees demonstrated why they are kings of the American League, in trimming Washington, 5 to 2. They made only four hits, off Al Thomas, but two of them were home runs by Lazzeri and Sewell and another was a single by Earle Combs with the bases laden.

Nineteen-year-old Krause made his first start of the season for the Athletics and granted seven hits in beating Boston, 5 to 4. Only two games were scheduled in the league.

hurdles, while Black, running second to George Saling of Iowa in the national intercollegiate, also broke the recognized mark for the distance.

The Salem meet provides the stars an opportunity to keep in trim for the final tryouts.

ROCKEFELLER STAND IS HIT

Prohibition Director Replies To Repeal Advocacy

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Amos W. Woodcock, prohibition director, disagrees with the premises on which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., criticizes and advocates repeal of the Eighteenth amendment.

In a letter that appeared in today's congressional record, the chief of federal prohibition forces held it was obvious that Rockefeller "has based his conclusions to some extent upon misinformation."

Woodcock's letter, written to Senator Sheppard (D. Texas), co-author of the Eighteenth amendment, said: "Mr. Rockefeller states that drunkenness generally has increased. This is a very general statement and by no means definite. It is not stated whether drinking has increased this year, last year, or in the past ten years, or whether there is more drinking now than before prohibition."

The prohibition director added that:

"It is difficult to analyze a 'general statement' that the illegal sale of liquor supports 'a vast army of lawbreakers.'"

"It may be and possibly is true in some limited instances that openly law-abiding citizens openly disregard the Eighteenth Amendment because of pique at what they feel an infringement of their private rights."

Consumption of liquor in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, was "materially less than in the last year of unrestricted manufacture and sale of liquor (1914)."

THEATER Attractions

"THE STRANGE CASE OF CLARA DEANE," melodrama, concludes its two-day run as the State theater's main attraction today.

Wynne Gibson, who scored so well in "Ladies of the Big House," is given her first starring role in the film. Pat O'Brien of "Front Page" fame and Frances Dee and Russell Gleason, Jr., who play the juvenile roles are the main players in this picture that is based on the great sacrifice of a mother for her daughter.

COMING ATTRACTIONS at the State theater show for Thursday only, "Reserved For Ladies," with the popular Leslie Howard as its star.

Here is a picture comedy—touched by the glamour of European aristocratic life, with a King, a Countess, a Duchess and a lot of wealthy commoners—in which the social amenities are humorously twisted. It's truly funny—plausible, yet ridiculous—satirical, yet amusing.

Leslie Howard, English actor extraordinary, who has frequently appeared on the Broadway stage in the last decade, and who recently played opposite Ann Harding in "Devotion," and in many other pictures of distinction, plays the leading role of the suave and flattering head waiter. He is splendid.
